ARMED BANDITS GET $3800 PAYROLL OF TRENTON FIRM

Stage Hold-Up of New Jersey Porcelain Co. Paymaster On A Trenton Street

KNOCKED DOWN BY GUN

Bandits Forced Car of Victim To Curb and Knocked Him Down

By International News Service
TRENTON, N. J., Mar. 1.—In full view of a score of pedestrians, two armed bandits today held up Frank J. Garson, an employee of the New Jersey Porcelain Company, on a Trenton street and escaped with the company's $3,800 payroll.

Garson had just received the money from the Security National Bank, and was walking toward his automobile when two shabbily dressed men approached him from the rear, snatched from his hands a leather bag containing the cash, and pushed him into the car.

Dashing to their own automobile in which an accomplice was keeping the motor running, the men fled down the New Brunswick Pike toward New York with Garson following in close pursuit in his own machine.

Two blocks away, however, the bandits stooped and forced Garson's car to the curb and ran toward the messenger. After threatening to shoot him unless he desisted in the chase, one of the trio smashed a revolver butt down upon Garson's skull, knocking him unconscious. The hold-up men then escaped.

Meanwhile, spectators who had witnessed the daring daylight robbery called police, and Garson was taken to a hospital for treatment of a severe scalp wound.

"CARE OF BOYS WILL REDUCE THE CRIMES"

Rev. A. J. Kimker, Penitentiary Chaplain, Gives Advice To Kiwanians

CRIME'S HUGE COST

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Mar. 1.—"If we are to reduce crime in America which is costing $40,000,000 a day, we must take care of the boy, the average American boy before he reaches the penitentiary wall," declared the Rev. A. J. Kimker, protestant chaplain of the Eastern State Penitentiary last night in an excellent address at the weekly dinner meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Doylestown at the Doylestown Inn.

Judges of the Bucks county courts and other officials attending the meeting highly praised the chaplain's talk and expressed their opinion openly after the meeting that "he knows what he's talking about."

The guest speaker did not pose as a specialist in crime or a "know-it-all." What he does know has been gained from reading and actual experience behind the prison walls with thousands of men.

Chaplain Kimker, who served as pastor of the Doylestown Methodist Church for one year 23 years ago, announced that at the present time there are 1,110,000 men behind prison bars in the United States, including 650,000 men in workhouses and other similar institutions, 75,000 in Federal penitentiaries and 350,000 in state penitentiaries.

The Eastern Penitentiary at Cherry Hill (Philadelphia) has 231 lifers at the present time.

The average age of the criminal today is 20 and 21 years and in some instances and sections, lower. In Cherry Hill and Graterford there are 3300 prisoners at the present time.

"I'm talking tonight about our normal American boy when I discuss crime," Chaplain Kimker declared. "It is the normal American boy that we are getting today. Graterford today looks like a great gathering of a crowd of young boys, a sort of reform school picture, all boys who have not been socialized."

Chaplain Kimker said that in spite of all the so-called experts he has never yet heard a real cause for crime explained, but he said that he did know certain things that contribute to crime.

"I know that the criminal has no time for religion, I do not mean the shouting type of religion, but the decent respect for an ever-ruling authority. I do know that the boy we get is an uneducated boy. Do not believe for one minute that the criminals are the educated type. The average school standing of the 3300 inmates of the Eastern Penitentiary is less than the fourth grade in school! And we are getting between 900 and 1000 every year."

"There is no use of getting sentimental about this crime and prison stuff," Chaplain Kimker declared. "Do not be a 'softie' about men in the penitentiary, for 80 per cent of the men in the penitentiary will never be improved one bit and that is the hardest statement that I have ever made in public during many years in my official capacity with the Eastern Penitentiary. This fact is true, religion or no religion."

Chaplain Kimker said that if they get 50 or 75 men to a religious service on Sunday out of a total of 3300 it is a "big crowd."

"Seventy-five per cent of that 50 or 75 are colored and the rest are mental cases," he continued. "And among that group are those who do not want to learn a thing except how to get out of the penitentiary."

"Men behind penitentiary walls today get the best food possible, and the very best of medical treatment, they are waited on and treated well. Then they are thrust out in the world institutionalized, my Kiwanis friends, and at the same time stigmatized, and that's a terrible thing. In most cases they are helpless and cannot find jobs, they cannot apply themselves."

Chaplain Kimker spoke briefly on the parole system and said that it had a few good points but not many.

"We do not dare tell the newspapers about the men we release who make good and we have many who are business executives today, but let one parole violator slip and it is a front page story," he said. "If we tell about those who make good, in many instances it would mean the loss of a job."

"I am glad to state however that 90 per cent of the men that go out of Cherry Hill and Graterford never come back."

Legs Broken By Own Car

Philadelphia, Mar. 1.—Policeman Arthur O'Connor, 53, had both his legs broken today when he was run over by his own automobile.

O'Connor left the car in the driveway of his rooming house while he opened the garage doors to put the machine away. Before he could open the doors, the car began to roll down an incline and the policeman was crushed between the doors and the car.

German Planes Over English Coast

London, Mar. 1.—German planes roared up and down the British east coast from Yorkshire to the Thames estuary today, carrying out extensive raids against coastal shipping.

No indications of the damage caused were announced immediately in London, where it was stated that German aircraft bombed, and machine-gunned units of a fishing fleet off the Yorkshire coast without causing any casualties.

(Editor's Note: An official announcement in Berlin stated several British vessels were sunk and others set on fire when German planes attacked British convoys and armed merchant vessels at sea.)

Finns Near Desperate Stage

Helsinki, Mar. 1.—The situation of the Finnish troops in the Mannerheim Line was clearly nearing a desperate stage today as Soviet Russia hurled new forces into the battle on the Carelian Isthmus.

Although the Finns still held Viborg, key city to the forward defense system, the heavy pressure of the Soviet troops led military observers to predict that it would be merely a matter of hours before the city must be abandoned.

Russian planes carried out heavy bombing attacks along the west shores of Viborg Bay, where Finnish troops launched counter attacks over the ice.

Peace Hopes Futile

Berlin, Mar. 1.—All hope of peace in Europe is futile unless Great Britain abandons her "world monopoly" and throws open her sea route to an equal exploitation by Nazi Germany, Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop told undersecretary of State Sumner Welles today. So far as the war itself is concerned, the semi-official announcement said, the German army merely awaits a single word to strike the decisive blow, which when it comes, "will overshadow all previous military conception."

IGLOO-SHAPED BOOKLETS TELL OF ESKIMO LIFE

These As Well As Pet and Transportation Books Made By Croydun Pupils

THOSE IN GRADE THREE

This is one of a series of articles dealing with the activities in the schools throughout this area.

CROYDON, Mar. 1.—Booklets in the shapes of igloos were an aid to grade three students at Croydun public school, when Miss Estelle Rauch, their teacher, directed the study of those people in the Arctic regions. The homes, habits and traditions of the Eskimos are depicted in the books which the girls and boys cut and pasted to completeness. The subjects of other booklets finished by the class this term are "My Pet Book" and "Transportation."

Pictures of all types of animals, cut from magazines, calendars, etc., fill the pet books; while the transportation booklet shows every mode of covered wagon and post riders, to the advanced models of ships, trains and airplanes. Those who fashioned the books share them with their classmates, placing them in the room library for all to enjoy.

In making a study of fish this term these third graders made many contributions in order to have an aquarium of their own. One donated the aquarium, another the fish, one a castle, some brought pretty stones, fish food, salt, net, etc. And each Friday "Blackie," "Goldie," "Fan-tail" and the others are accommodated with a 15-minute salt bath.

Soon there will appear at the front of the class-room a March frieze, 15x4 feet, with a Netherlands scene made free-hand style by the pupils.

Charcoal work is now occupying the attention of seventh and eighth grade students in art class, with Miss Ethel Kines in charge. Miss Kines teaches grades five, six, seven and eight, in art and English. The charcoal sketches will be exhibited in the room at a later date, and visitors will thus have opportunity to view them.

DEAN OF RIDER COLLEGE ADDRESSES CLUBS HERE

J. G. Gill Speaks at Meetings of Rotary and Exchange Clubs

J. G. Gill, Dean of Rider College, Trenton, warned against the dominating position that materialism has come to hold in this country when he addressed the Rotary Club yesterday afternoon at the Elks' Home, and again last evening when he addressed the Exchange Club.

"Live up to God's religion instead of material things," Gill urged. His topic was "Patriotic Americans."

"Do away with the sham and hypocrisy, and instead cultivate the spiritual values more. Materialism is even creeping into the sermons and this must be avoided."

"Despite the technical and mechanical improvements that have come about through the ages man's peace and happiness have not increased. As a proof of that we have only to study the figures of persons in our mental and penal institutions; that number is growing larger every year."

Introducing the part that youth is playing in this struggle for the material Mr. Gill declared, "The young people of today need to be taught more thoroughly the sound fundamentals of living. Records show that the majority of crimes committed today are committed by youths under 21 years of age."

"By working together we, as Americans, can bring order out of chaos. Above all we should work for the things that stand for Americanism. We must guard against the influences that are undermining our Democracy and Christianity," Gill concluded.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

A Demand For Liquidation

Washington, Feb. 29.

THE disclosures concerning the Wagner Labor Act and the NLRB, as developed under the probe of the Smith committee, are intensely disturbing to the young radicals of the inner White House circle, who heretofore have hailed the law as the "Magna Charta of Labor," listing it as one of the major New Deal achievements.

NO effort is made to conceal their present pain and among them there is some muttering about the failure of the President, away on a fishing trip and with his mind full of the European war and Mr. Welles' visit to the belligerent nations, to deal competently with the situation. The result is that a condition has arisen which easily may cause acute Administration embarrassment.

WHAT SEEMED a clear premonitory sign of this was given the other day when a staunch Democrat from Georgia rose in the House and declared that it now seems necessary "to liquidate the NLRB and amend the law which it has been using to destroy business." This unequivocal declaration caused a spontaneous burst of applause from both Democrats and Republicans. So clearly did it reflect the feeling of members that it seems accepted that neither the influence of the Administration nor the CIO leanings of the Labor Committee will prevent adoption of the recommendations of the Smith committee before the end of the session. Should it be said, the Labor Committee unduly hold these recommendations, they will be taken away from it by petition.

ROTARIANS WIN THE QUIZ CONTEST TROPHY

Senior Travel Club Places Second in Inter-Service Club Question Period

SPONSORED BY JUNIORS

To the Bristol Rotary Club go the spoils of the first Inter-Service Club Contest conducted in Bristol. For by virtue of their running up a total of 130 points in the quiz contest held in the Travel Club home, last evening, with two men's service clubs and two women's clubs participating, they were presented with the plaque donated by the sponsoring unit, the Junior Travel Club. The cup, symbolic of second place, was received by the senior Travel Club, which trio of representatives followed closely with 125 points.

The last half of the quiz showed a right-about-face for the Rotarians, who came up from low position to gain the laurels, while the senior Travel Club maintained second position which it held at the intermission.

The other clubs competing were Bristol Exchange Club and the Junior Travel Club, and from the moment the first question was put to Exchange-ites who drew for first place, until the final minute, interest of both the contestants and their friends who filled the auditorium, was keen.

The winning team was comprised of Messrs. George Ardrey, Otto Grupp, Jr., and E. L. Helwig. The Exchange-ites, who received the first question "What is a kayak?" found it an easy one, but occasionally during the evening when the "experts" were "stumped," the audience was given the privilege of answering by the master of ceremonies, Ted K. Warner, Jr., Esq., Philadelphia.

The senior Travel Club, winning second place, was represented by Harry T. Neher, Mrs. Thomas B. Knox, and Mrs. E. Linton Martin. The juniors chose for their team: Mrs. William Wicher, Mrs. Edward Priestley, and Mrs. Mildred Morse; while the Exchange Club had named Warren P. Snyder, Keith Rosser and Charles Boyd.

For a time it seemed as if the Exchangeites might walk off with the trophy, they being fortunate enough to secure several questions on music and history, well adapted to the chosen contestants, but when, during the second half they fell down on queries revolving about nursery rhymes and motion pictures, they slowly dropped back. To the delight of the audience and opposing teams, one group of the men was asked the question "In making jelly, the less stirring there is, the better the result. True or false, and why?" But the Exchange Club, after much wrinking of brows and pondering proved equal to the occasion; then found delight when Rotarians were questioned on what type of kitchen utensil is called a spider. Then the Rotary group surprised with the correct answer of "A type of frying pan."

There were some humorous and some peculiar answers, such as that given to the query "With what does entomology deal?" "Bugology" came the reply. The senior Travel Club group did themselves proud when they told that the two cities between which the first successful cable was laid were Dover and Calais.

After intermission, the more advanced questions were asked, these including a group of questions on Bristol and its history; also such questions as: "Would you call Solomon a misogynist, and if not why?" "What is the symbolic meaning of a sapphire?" "Name four insane objects such as 'crazy quilt,' using a different synonym for each." From all sections the answers to the latter were finally gathered, with nut sundae, unbalanced budget, cuckoo clock, cracked ice, etc. "Bristol" questions included "What prominent movie actor once worked in Bristol's 5 and 10 cent store?" and "Locate Bristol as to longitude and latitude."

The result of the quiz was announced by Mrs. Robert Brooks, president of the Junior Travel Club, who also presented the trophies. Miss Ann Jeffries, chairman of the program committee, announced the contest rules, and informed that the trophies are to be kept by the winning clubs for one year, then returned to the juniors for the next contest. A club winning a trophy three times will be privileged to retain it. The time-keeper was Miss Lillian Kelly, Doylestown; while the judges included: Phillip Driver, Esq., Philadelphia; Miss Virginia Taylor, and Mrs. Ruth Wiley, Doylestown.

Proceeds are to be used for the Bristol Nursery School.

GREENBERG CASE MAY GO TO JURY SOMETIME TODAY

Defense Witnesses Continued To Testify at Trial Yesterday

DENIAL BY DEFENDANT

Greenberg Tells Jury He Had Nothing To Do With Starting Fire

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 1.—The seventh day of the trial of Adam Greenberg, 55, owner of the Black Cat Inn near Plumsteadville, got under way this morning before Judge Calvin S. Boyer. It is likely that the case will go to the jury late today.

Yesterday was "defendant's day" with witnesses called in behalf of the Buckingham Township farmer-defendant, who was tried last year, convicted and granted a new trial on the same charge of arson at the inn on the early morning of October 6, 1938.

The Commonwealth's case presented by District Attorney Edward G. Biesler brought forth witnesses, including the prosecutor, Private Felix R. Gowen, of the Motor Police, who testified that a number of cans and bottles containing an oily liquid were found after the fire. An expert witness later testified for the Commonwealth that several of the exhibits analyzed contained kerosene.

The defendant Greenberg denied that he had anything to do with starting a fire at the Black Cat Inn although he admitted sleeping at the inn that night. He testified that he was awakened by the smoke and hurried downstairs to safety.

Harold Fretz, of Bedminster, a clothing factory worker by day and an orchestra leader back in 1938, called by the defense, testified that he conducted an orchestra at the Black Cat Inn in 1938, playing on Saturday nights. He testified that the place was conducted in "good fashion" and that "big crowds were attracted on Saturday nights." Admission fee was 25 cents per person for dancing.

Mrs. Hannah Greenberg, 51, wife of the defendant, testified that she is a native of Latvia and met her husband in church in Philadelphia. She testified in answer to one of the three defense lawyers—Wilbur VanDine, Doylestown, David Getz and Theodore Gardner, Allentown—that she worked for a time, got married, saved money and helped her husband buy a small farm in Buckingham Township, and later another farm of 130 acres where they now live. The farm is clear of debt.

Jars and other containers found at the Black Cat Inn the morning after the fire were explained by Mrs. Greenberg. She testified:

"I often put flowers in some of the fruit jars at the inn. We used flowers on the fire place and around the dance hall. I often emptied the ash trays after a busy Saturday night, and used a can or two for this."

"I always used a mixture of water and kerosene to wash the windows at the Black Cat Inn on Sundays after a big Saturday night. I got the kerosene from a can in the kitchen, dipping it out of a can with a fruit can."

"When I cleaned the second floor of the inn the last time before the fire, I used gasoline that I got from the pump outside the inn. I used a milk bottle to put it in and I put the gasoline on the bed springs and mattresses. I used rags for cleaning too, and they might have had some gasoline on them."

Under cross-examination by District Attorney Biesler, Mrs. Greenberg said: "If you don't clean your bed springs ahead of time for bed-bugs you will get them."

Mrs. Greenberg, the defense pointed out, was not called as a witness at the last trial when Greenberg was presented by John L. DuBois, Doylestown attorney.

William Happ, 40, Doylestown realtor, defense witness, testified that he went to the Black Cat Inn about 9:30 the morning after the fire and found

COUNTRY DOCTOR

Dr. William Eberle Thompson, known for many years as America's oldest practicing physician, is dead in the little village of Bethel, Ohio, where he was born almost 105 years ago and where he practiced his profession for 80 years. So ends the magnificent epic of a country doctor.

It is given to few men to live for 105 years; and it is given to almost none to follow a vocation for 80 years. So Doctor Thompson's career probably is unparalleled in the annals of his profession—unparalleled, that is to say, in the span of years covered, although paralleled in other ways by the briefer careers of other country doctors.

In 1860, when Doctor Thompson began to practice, he used to ride horseback over almost impassable roads to visit his patients. Sometimes he had to swim his horse across swollen streams, holding his medicine kit high above his head. When a stream was too high to cross, he would hear of a patient's symptoms from a member of the family, standing on the opposite bank, and then tie medicines to a rock and throw them across the stream—repeating the process daily until the patient recovered or the stream receded.

In later years, Doctor Thompson's rounds did not involve such strenuous physical activity; but the spirit which sent him about the countryside remained the same. It is an understatement to say that Doctor Thompson's career probably is unparalleled in his own profession. We might add that his career—and the careers of other devoted men known as country doctors—probably cannot be matched in any calling, whatever.

NEW AUTOMOBILE TIME

As spring comes on, people throng to the automobile show-rooms. A man may have no intention of buying a car when he begins to look at them, but the marvelous beauty and convenience of these machines often convince him that he cannot exist longer without a new one.

When he compares the automobile of today with those turned out a quarter of a century ago, the change seems a miracle. Those who recall riding in the wheezing and spitting old machines of 1915 will remember many sorrows of the road, how the old bus would go back on them at the most critical moments and leave them to walk miles to the nearest repair shop. They recall how it labored up the hills as if its strength might give out any minute—and it often did.

The speed, power, flexibility and instant responsiveness of the modern car passes all belief. The automobile makers of 25 years ago scarcely dreamed that such a product could be created. The mind of man has so refined that intricate combination of mechanical parts that it obeys the slightest touch of its master. The endurance of these cars is another miracle. They traverse rough roads, incessantly jolted and yanked by ruts and stones, yet somehow they keep purring along like little clocks on a secure shelf.

The mind of man has produced the most marvelous machine for overcoming space, but the mind of the driver remains about as it was. If he is inconsiderate or reckless or uses poor judgment, what becomes of man's mechanical triumph?

The Great Game of Politics

In brief, the House is overwhelmingly in favor of drastic action.

WHEN it is considered that the committee is Democratic and that the House is Democratic, and that the law and the board are particular pets of a Democratic President, this state of affairs is extraordinary. If the House functions as now indicated, it will act in defiance of the President, whose standpat attitude is that the act is perfect and the board composed of able and upright men properly administering a great law. Yet, the facts, brought out by testimony of the board members and employees, convict it of gross prejudice, calculated unfairness, a thoroughly biased policy and actual violation of the Federal statutes. In addition to illegal pressure upon Congress, the board, through secret agreement with the RFC, has been exposed as using public funds to blackmail employers into yielding to unreasonable and damaging demands. Altogether, the record as revealed by the Smith committee is a shocking one. It has, as representative Cox (Dem.) says, "stirred the wrath of those who love justice and fair play" all over the country.

CERTAINLY the investigation has enormously increased resentment toward the board. Its unpopularity is beginning to be comparable to that of the NRA in the months before the Supreme Court killed it. Its only defenders are to be found among one faction of organized labor and in the Administration. In the absence of any recognition of the facts by Mr. Roosevelt, his underlings maintain an attitude of complete support, refuse to admit that there is a flaw in the law or a fault in the board. Asked by the committee to advise it whether the admitted lobbying for funds by the board constitutes a violation of the Federal statute, Attorney General Robert H. Jackson digs up an ancient law which he cites to show that he is not permitted to give legal opinion to Congress.

CONCEDING the technical propriety of his position, the committee retorts by laying the facts on his doorstep and asserting that action is up to him. No one expects Mr. Jackson to act. On the contrary, unless prodded into it, there is every reason to expect him not to act in this case any more than he acted in the case of the forged letters used to attack Mr. Dies, the facts of which were also presented to him. The truth is Mr. Jackson seems to have no appetite for initiating proceedings against politicians and officials linked with the Administration, or in favor of those who, like Mr. Dies, are in the Administration doghouse. On the contrary, he appears disposed to shelve requests for such action and his energies seem chiefly devoted to nullifying proceedings started by his predecessors, making partisan speeches and trying to force the selection of the SEC as trustee for the bankrupt Associated Gas and Electric Company—a plan which, if it had succeeded, would have been very odorous, indeed.

THE Jackson attitude is a reflection of the President's attitude. It means that there will be no Administration aid either in indicting the board for its misdemeanors or in amending the act. If the amendment and liquidation demanded by the House are achieved, it will be in spite of Administration influence. The cause of New Deal perturbation is the prospect that exactly that will happen. It does, then they will go into the next campaign with one of their most proudest accomplishments shot out from under them. If it does not, then the Republicans will have a campaign issue well calculated to solidify both big and little business, as well as one labor faction, on their side. The whole thing is additional evidence that the mistakes of the New Deal cannot be left to the New Dealers to correct because no true New Dealer has yet been brought to the point of admitting that one has been made.

"Care of Boys Will Reduce The Crimes"

"As to what can be done to reduce crime, I have definite ideas gained from my experience. My first point is—take care of the normal American boy before he reaches us. I am proud to announce that I have never heard of an honest-to-goodness Boy Scout going to the penitentiary! Get your boy groups in your towns, the ones who are liable to form little groups provide for them a healthy program of recreation and leadership. See that every town has a well-equipped gymnasium open to every boy.

FICTION •••• OTHER INTERESTS

"I'm a Methodist, I must admit, and I remember when I was active in the preaching field, they used to forget the young people entirely and run everything for the old folks. Then they held a revival once a year to get back the back-sliders instead of taking an interest in the young folks and doing something for them while they are young so that they will not back-slide.

"The place to start is with the young fellow. Our specialists in crime are doing a good work, that is true, but they could use some of them in examination work and guidance work in the grade schools."

Chaplain Kimker conducted a very interesting question hour after his address. In answer to a question by President Judge Hiram H. Keller, of the Bucks county courts, the chaplain said that it would be a grand thing if some kind of pre-probationary training could be provided for men released from jails. This would fill up a big gap which now exists, he declared.

When asked what he thought about raising the compulsory school age to 18 in Pennsylvania, Chaplain Kimker said:

"I'm absolutely against it. It would be okay if the boys and girls had the capacity to study on but there is no use of keeping them in school if they will not study."

Chaplain Kimker said that a great good would result if the educational system of the State of Pennsylvania was changed so as to make it possible to establish more vocational schools rather than a continued idea of more high standards and "fancy frills" in our high schools.

His final blow of the interesting address was made at the system today of relief which he said is "making thousands of new bums annually."

"I have only touched the surface of this great crime problem but will be glad to come back some time and tell you more," Chaplain Kimker declared. Birthday greetings were extended to Kiwanians Frank Worthington, Louis Moerman, Jr., and Charles T. Horner. Alton Wismer, a past president of the Doaypayo Club, was welcomed as a visitor.

Kiwanian Charles Mamounis, chairman of the club's underprivileged child committee was congratulated by President Harold Zeek on behalf of the club, on his recent recognition of service bestowed upon him by the Rotary Club of Doylestown.

Announcement was made that the speaker next Tuesday night, March 5, will be Major Thomas F. Martin, commander of the Pennsylvania Motor Police Training School at Hershey. March 12th will be Bankers' Night. The speaker March 19th will be George Elias, of New York City, "The Man Without a Country."

At a meeting of the program committee for the second quarter, headed by Kiwanian Hugo Bezdek, the following programs were tentatively arranged:

April 12th, Y. M. C. A. speaker; April 9th, observance of the 15th anniversary of the Kiwanis Club of Doylestown, a ladies' night affair with the return of a former Lieutenant Governor, Dr. Carmon Ross and Roe Fulkerson, of Washington, D. C., nationally known editorial writer and author; April 16th, travelogue conducted by Rotarian Oscar O. Bean; April 25th (Thursday), meeting with the Quakertown Kiwanis at Trainer's, Quakertown, in observance of the 15th anniversary of the Quakertown club, with Fred C. W. Parker, of Chicago, secretary of Kiwanis International as speaker.

April 30th, observance of United States-Canada Good-Will Week; May 7th, classification talks; May 14th, Charles W. Baum, editor of Porkasie Central News; May 21st, club will entertain the Doylestown High School rifle team and Coach Mike Beshel, with a nationally known speaker scheduled for that time; May 28th, classification talks and visit from Lieutenant Governor Elmer Menges; June 4th, on Lake Warren, by Warren Fretz, Doylestown; June 11th, open date; June 18th, visit from Governor Martin Fry, of State College; June 25th, joint Kiwanis-Rotary-Doaypayo Club meeting on occasion of Doylestown High commencement.

A DAY!

• The other day a man told me there are 30,000 babies born in this country every day! And if you have ever had a baby in your family, you will agree that that's a lot of babies.

Think of it! Thirty thousand Americans who never heard of the Bill of Rights, or the World War, or the depression—who have never even heard a WPA joke!

Seriously, though, it made me stop and think of the "turn-over" in people that is going on all the time. Generations of people come and go, but there are certain fundamentals that don't change. One of them is value, and that's the one that is important to me. Look at the businesses that have endured over the last century or more, through depression and prosperity, and you will find that they are based on this fundamental—value.

That's why I don't spend much time worrying about my business—the business of selling Ford cars. I know as long as value remains a fundamental, people will want to own Ford cars. I know I'm safe in staking my business and personal reputation on the greatest value in the automobile world! It's a pretty good feeling to have.

ON THE SCREENS

BRISTOL THEATRE

Because at one time he was formerly a reporter and knows intimately how a woman reporter on a metropolitan daily would react under certain circumstances, Roland Drew coached Grace Bradley between scenes of "The Invisible Killer," the high-tension melodrama now showing at the Bristol Theatre.

In "Outpost of the Mounties," starring Charles Starrett at the Bristol Theatre, the famous slogan of the force, "They always get their man," is brought to the screen with thrilling realism. For Starrett fights through flying bullets, flashing knife-blades and pounding fists to capture the slayer of a trading post agent.

RITZ THEATRE

It is for Stephen Foster's songs that he is remembered and honored today. He wrote hundreds of them and the best have become genuine classics. The colorful, romantic days of minstrels and river boats, when a stormy love wrote the songs that are America's own, are brought stirring to the screen in "Swanee River," which opens today at the Ritz Theatre.

GRAND THEATRE

Many who went to the Grand Theatre last night must have done so, as this writer did, with the profound conviction that the "first, fine, careless rapture" of "Four Daughters" could not be recaptured in "Four Wives," even by the incredible magic of the movies.

We soon found out that we were wrong.

We found out that the current film has all that its predecessor had, with an added flip that may be due to a number of things. It may be the babies. It may be the extremely live-wire martial prospect pursued with such airy determination by Kay Lemp.

Greenberg Case May Go To Jury Sometime Today

Greenberg sitting in his car, and that he looked "as though he was not feeling well."

"I asked Greenberg what had happened," Happ said, "and he told me that smoke woke him up and that he had come downstairs and that a door was open that he had closed, and that he walked out."

No questions were asked of Happ in cross-examination.

John Herman, Phila., a carpenter, testified that he worked at the Black Cat Inn for Greenberg in 1938 for $3 a day and board and that he helped to make certain repairs that Rudolph Greenberg, a son of the defendant, had testified about earlier in the trial.

Under cross-examination Herman mentioned something about repairs made at the Black Cat after a previous fire in 1937 in another bedroom.

After an objection by the defense counsel District Attorney Biester made the following statement for the Commonwealth:

"The Commonwealth agrees that testimony regarding a previous fire be stricken out because it was before Greenberg was in possession of the place and because it had nothing to do with this case whatsoever."

Mrs. Pauline Stern, of Phila., who worked at the Black Cat Inn in 1938, just as a visitor with the Greenbergs, testified that she helped Mrs. Greenberg cleaning on the second floor and that they both used gasoline around the beds. She corroborated Mrs. Greenberg's testimony.

Mrs. Alice V. Rise, of Buckingham Township, wife of Frank H. Rice, a neighbor of Greenberg, testified that she was at the Black Cat "the opening night" and that the defendant operated "a nice place." She testified that she had known the Greenbergs for 25 years and that the defendant's reputation for peace and good order was "very good."

Mrs. Josephine Greenberg, wife of Albert, a son of the defendant, testified that she worked at the inn as a waitress on Saturday nights. She corroborated the defendant's testimony concerning his undressing in the kitchen of the inn before going to bed, because it was cold upstairs. Mrs. Greenberg said that she has seen his nightclothes hanging on a hook in the kitchen.

Albert Greenberg, 23, another son of the defendant, testified that he ran his dad's farm and helped at the inn on Saturday nights as a waiter. He testified that the value of the inn the day before the fire was $7500.

Oscar O. Bean, Doylestown attorney, and Edward B. Watson, Register of Wills of Bucks county were the last witnesses called Thursday afternoon before adjournment. They testified that they had known the defendant Greenberg for some years and that his reputation for peace and good order was "good."

Charles Happ, 37, Doylestown, real estate broker, testified that he has known the Black Cat Inn for some years and has been there several times.

BRISTOL HIGH SIX CREDITS SUCCESS TO "LUCKY SEVEN"

Acquire Three Straight Lower Bucks County League Titles

WIN 23 OUT OF 24 GAMES

"Secret Message" To Each Player Read Before Each Of The Tilts

Three straight Lower Bucks County League basketball titles and 23 victories in 24 games over a three-year stretch is quite a record for any team to set up in any sport. Yet that is the established record of Coach Peg Royer's Bristol high girls' court teams, compiled over seasons from 1938-40 inclusively.

What was the secret of Coach Royer's success? That was the question put to the coach in an effort to learn just what was the real story behind the headlines which the girls have captured for so long a period of time. Herewith is the answer disclosed by her unhesitatingly in an interview in which she promised to reveal the inside story of success before the close of the season if they captured the championship. They did, and she readily complied to "tell all."

"We built our theme for the season around the number seven—'Lucky 7,'" she said, as she quickly pointed out that there are six girls on the team (varsity) plus the mascot, to comprise the first "seven." "Then there are seven letters in the word 'Bristol,' and also seven letters in the two words, 'Red-Grey,' the school colors. And there are seven letters in the school monicker, 'Bunnies.' So we set out to achieve a goal and took the seventh letter of the alphabet, 'G,' to symbolize our 'goal'—to end the season on top in the league and to win our third straight circuit championship."

Now the word "seven" has more than a character of "good luck." For in ancient days, it was a term which symbolized "completeness" or "completion." It was also a Biblical term used in the sense as "Spiritual Completion." "We hoped to be 'complete' as it were," she said, "by winning the championship for the third straight season, which we ultimately accomplished."

Before the season began each girl received a "secret" letter and they were to keep its contents secret, not revealing it even to their team-mates. It contained a "message" to each girl to whom it was addressed concerning team play, co-operation, sportsmanship, and inspiration to better playing. It also contained suggestions for improvement in each girl's own particular style of play. And before each game every girl read her own letter in privacy to gain renewed vigor and inspiration as they went into each game. The contents of the letters were often used by the girls during time-out periods when things just weren't going right and the opposition was racking up points on them.

Each girl on the varsity received a letter in her own name which would go to spell the word "Bristol" and a theme was built around each letter. Bristol was spelled as follows:

Bunny
widman
evanS
Tomlinson

Bunny (Mascot): B is for Bunny, the mascot. Mascot stands for a luck charm, something to inspire the team.
waRick (Ann): R is for Red, the first of two school colors, and stands for courage. Grey, the other word, stands for spirit, the virtue of always going onward and never quitting. The two words together, red-grey, contain seven letters. They were to have reverence for the school colors since they stood for the happiest four years of their lives.

Widman (Peggy): I is for Inspire. She was to keep the team inspired all the time toward their goal—the third straight league title—to work together, play fair, and to play to win.

EvanS (Gretchen): S is for Success. It was her duty to make team conscious of the fact that success was their goal and to give the girls the urge to play better ball when not up to their standard of play.

Tomlinson (Esther): T is for Topmost. If she wanted the team to be "topmost" in the league it was her job to co-operate in every way and to give the girls the added incentive that would put them in the topmost position of the league.

SutOn (Doris): O is for Offense. Most of the team was playing on the defense and it was her duty to keep the girls ever alert to get the ball in the offensive zone, necessary for scoring. Her slogan was "Ever onward on the offensive." A glance at the team's scoring record for the season will reveal that she carried out her duty to the utmost.

helen (VanAken): L is for Loyalty. She was to keep the team mindful of their loyalty to themselves as well as their school and coach by playing the best brand of ball possible and thus become an asset to the school, which is the highest type of loyalty.

Collecting the seven-letter words in their various forms, they would compose a sentence reading something like this: "The BRISTOL BUNNIES OFFENSIVE play and LOYALTY INSPIRED the RED and GREY girls to SUCCESS and the TOPMOST position of their league for the third straight season."

It can be readily seen that each girl carried out her part of the "theme" to the best of her ability to gain that goal. And to assure themselves of it, each one carried the hind foot of a rabbit, a symbol of good luck, which were donated by Miss Marion Harrison, a member of the faculty. Another faculty member, Miss Mary Beale, kept the team posted each week on their scholastic eligibility and marks which served as a requisite to the girls who were falling off in any subject.

Last year the girls took as their theme, "On to the World's Fair," a trip promised for winning the championship. This year the girls are promised a trip to the summer home of their coach, Mrs. Royer, in Connecticut.

Helen VanAken, the only member of this year's team eligible to play next year, will be the key girl around which next year's team must be built. This season the team was built around Ann Warwick, the only hold-over from the 1939 combination, and prior to that it was Mary Yates, the only varsity member back from the 1938 championship combination, that last year's team was built around.

The managers of this year's team were Jayne Lynch, Senior; Peggy Rathke, Junior; and Anita Navetta, Sophomore.

Ralph Cahall broke the individual scoring record of the Bristol Basketball League last night when he counted 33 points in leading the Rohm and Haas team to a new team scoring record when they steam-rolled the Celtics to the tune of a 75-30 score.

Cahall shattered the mark which was held jointly by Shirley Duerr and Pukie Zefferis at 29 points each. The Rohm and Haas team in scoring the 75 points topped the mark of 71 which was only set last Monday night by the Profy five.

It rained field goals steadily last night and there seemed to be no stopping of them. In this game a total of 47 double-deckers went flying through the loop. Cahall made fifteen of them himself and nine of these came in the final period when both clubs were practically exhausted from the scoring of points.

GRUNDY FIVE HAS EASY TIME WITH FALLS ALUMNI

In another high-scoring tilt, the Falls Alumni bowed to the Grundy five, 64-56, and enabled that team to cop the bye in the playoffs for the Bristol Basketball League championship. Last week, Falls was one of the contesting teams that scored 134 points in a game and last night's total was 120.

Although the scoring was plentiful and the defense of both clubs was completely crumpled, the game was interesting. The woolen workers won because of its early lead. At the end of the first stanza, the boys of George Hermann were in front, 25-13.

BRISTOL SUBURBAN LEAGUE
Result of last night
Third Ward, 20; Franklin, 18

By a two-point margin, the Third Ward A. C. won the championship of the Bristol Suburban League beating the Franklin A. C., 20-18, in an extra period match played on the Italian Mutual Aid floor.

At the end of the regulation game the count was deadlocked at 14-14. The Pikers then scored a trio of field goals in fast order. Grimes, Carter, and Profy doing the counting. The score remained thus until the final minutes when Rocco Sagolla sent the Franklin fans into an uproar by scoring two twin-pointers which shaved the lead four points but the time had elapsed and before another shot could be made, the tilt was over.

BRISTOL HIGH WINS BRILLIANT VICTORY

MT. AIRY, Mar. 1.—While the P. S. D. quintet is far removed from Lower Merion High School's class in the court game, yet if the brand of ball exhibited by coach Tom Campion's Bristol High five against the Mutes yesterday is any criterion as to how they may stack up against the section one Suburban titleholders, Bristol may not be the pushover for the big Maroon club everyone expects them to be.

For the Cards, while beating the P. S. D. passers here yesterday afternoon to conclude their 1940 campaign, 29-22, displayed a brilliant brand of ball against this big and powerful aggregation from Mt. Airy. Not since Bristol topped Fallsington High by the impressive margin of 37-14 at Trenton three weeks ago have they shown the type of play that carried them through two straight Lower Bucks County League championships and 15 victories in 19 tilts this season.

150 Gather for P. T. A. Founders Anniversary

county P. T. A. president, Dr. MacAllister told the teachers and parents that they should "get close to God," and impressed the importance and need of Bible training which "should start in the home and school."

Mrs. Roscoe Perkins, president of Cornwells association, presided during the early part of the evening, and announced several of the numbers. The play staged by P. T. A. members from New Hope was entitled "Tribute To Founders," and participants were Mr. and Mrs. Brenton Hubbard, Miss Rita Flood, and Jack Pickett, who represented a family which benefited greatly through affiliating with the P. T. A. The four ended the sketch by singing "Perfect Day." Mrs. Flood, in her address, told of the great influence for good through establishment of such associations in the community.

Mrs. Winifred LaBaw introduced the following county officials, who paid tribute to P. T. A. founders, and told of work of the various departments: Program, Mrs. John Tilley; music, Mrs. Irvin McNair; health, Mrs. Irvin Slight; membership, Mrs. Roscoe Perkins; safety, Mrs. Samuel Permar; recreation, Mrs. John Vance; P. T. A., Mrs. Edward Williamson; study group, Mrs. Edward Smith; citizenship, Mrs. John Ralsner; magazine, Mrs. Evan Stover; hospitality, Mrs. Corrine Wheeler; thrift, Mrs. William Fielding; publicity, Miss Rae Komarski.

Selections by the local high school band were led by Miss Grace Paist, and the flag salute by Mrs. Perkins. The entire gathering sang the P. T. A. song.

Another speaker of the evening was J. Harry Hoffman, superintendent of Bucks county schools, who touched on various subjects of interest to parents and teachers.

A Washington tea was served in the cafeteria, with Cornwells members as hosts and hostesses. Mrs. Creps was chairman of the refreshments committee.

AT THE CAPITOL

(By International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Mar. 1.—State Treasurer F. Clair Ross is one Democratic leader who has no intention of becoming embroiled in an intra-party dispute . . . not if he can help it . . . his formal announcement of candidacy for the post of Auditor General is expected to be forthcoming soon . . . in the meantime, his nominating petitions have been circulating throughout the State.

Ross scouts the idea that U. S. Senator Joseph F. Guffey may set up an entire slate in the event the faction within the party headed by Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence and Philadelphia chairman John B. Kelly runs a candidate against him . . . "don't think I'll have any opposition in the primary," he added.

There appears to be considerable doubt now in the Democratic party circles that Auditor General Warren R. Roberts will make the race for State Treasurer . . . Roberts could have had the Democratic State Committee endorsement for Senator, but preferred not to oppose Guffey . . . Jackson E. Scarl, Allentown, former president of the Young Democrats of Pennsylvania, is circulating petitions for State Treasurer . . . Another man mentioned as a possible candidate is former P. U. C. Commissioner Donald M. Livingston.

Former Governor George H. Earle and Mrs. Earle paid a visit to the State capital before leaving for Sofia, where Earle will take up his new post as U. S. Minister to Bulgaria . . . The former Governor left for his new position with the best wishes of his many friends in the capital and throughout the State . . . Earle's eldest son, George H. Earle, IV, or "Young George," as he was known at the capitol, will act as his father's personal secretary . . . His salary will be paid by his parent.

Nominating blanks were taken out recently at the State Elections Bureau for a Presidential candidate, delegates-at-large, district delegates and alternates . . . The petitions were being taken to Philadelphia, but the person applying for them refused to divulge in what candidate's interest they were being secured.

A second payment of $49,035 to Dauphin County to pay for the costs of the grand jury investigation into the Earle Administration has brought the total amount of State funds paid out for that purpose to $78,916. That leaves a balance of $21,083 still to be paid out of the $100,000 fund voted by the Legislature. The cost to the county is several thousand more than that and it is anticipated a new appropriation will be asked of the next session.

J. Twing Brooks, former Democratic Liquor Control Board member is reported considering running for his old post in Congress in opposition to Representative Robert J. Corbett, a Republican.
